Jared Bauman

Associate

Jared Bauman, an associate at Holtzman Vogel, focuses his practice on commercial litigation, political and election law.

Prior to law school, Jared gained valuable experience in the political and legal fields. He served as an intern at the Federation for American Immigration Reform in Washington. He also worked as a Hogan Fellow for Larry Hogan's gubernatorial campaign in Maryland. In this role, he identified key policy priorities, engaged with local activists and community leaders, and conducted research on issues of importance to the Maryland Jewish community.

Jared was one of the first alumni of the Vanderbilt AI Law Lab (VAILL), where he cultivated a deep understanding of how AI impacts the practice of law. Among other topics, his work with VAILL delved into the interactions between AI systems and client services, privacy and confidentiality, and business operations.

Jared was previously a summer associate with the firm.
